A confectionery shop in Japan has created “emochi” wagashi. This will only be available for a limited time. The delicious new sweet will be sold both over the counter and online. Customers will be able to purchase them at the store.

Wagashi (traditional Japanese sweets) are a staple teatime treat in Japan. They are often made to look like elegant flowers or fashioned into other eye-catching shapes by skillful craftsmen, but this Japanese confectionery shop has applied a modern design to mochi (sweet rice cakes) with its latest creation.

The emochi, small bite-sized mochi look exactly like the emoji on your phone. This Japanese confectionery store has created ten different kinds of emochi including commonly used facial expressions like cry-laughing, heart eyes and surprise. They come in the following flavors: white bean paste, yuzu bean paste and miso bean paste.

These mochi make the perfect gift because no matter what the occasion, there's sure to be an emochi face appropriate for the situation. Plus, they come with cards you can write on that look just like a text message chat bubble.

A box of three costs ¥1,512, while a box featuring the entire set of ten will (1) set you back ¥3,996. The emochi will be sold at selected shops in the Tohoku region, but not to worry if you don't live there. You can order them online starting from the 13th of next month, so mark your calendars – we expect these limited-edition treats to fly off the shelves. Orders can be delivered nationwide, but not internationally. Shipping costs anywhere from ¥880 to ¥2,420 depending on your location.
